

Non-English language declaration

If any applicant for the International Prudence Bond (Spain) is a national of a country where English is not a primary or official language, they need to complete and submit a signed declaration in their native language before we can process their application.

Countries where English is a primary or official language are detailed overleaf and nationals of these countries don't need to submit a declaration.

If you need a declaration please speak to your account manager. When you get the declaration, please pass this to your client to sign, and then send us both the declaration and the application form at the same time.

The declaration that will be used has been provided in English for information purposes only.

Thank you for your interest in Prudential International and the International Prudence Bond.

We understand that you are a national of a country where English is not a primary or official language.

Please note that all documents, correspondence and communication regarding your bond will be in English.

We feel it is important that we draw your attention to this and ask that you confirm you are happy to proceed with your application on this basis.

We would be grateful if you could read, sign and return the declaration with your application form. Please note that we cannot process your application until we receive the signed declaration from you.

If you have any concerns or additional queries in relation to this matter, please contact your financial adviser.

Declaration

I/We, confirm with my/our signature below that I/We are fully aware and accept that all correspondence, documentation and communications in respect of the International Prudence Bond will be in English.

I/We further confirm that I/We are able to read and understand English sufficiently to allow me/us to fully understand the documentation, correspondence and communications associated with this product.

Important information for joint applications

We need a signed declaration from each applicant who is a national of a country in which English is not an official language. If only one of the applicants is a national of a country like this, we still need a declaration from that applicant. Where applicants are from different countries where English again is not the primary or official language, we need a declaration from each applicant in their own language.
